Canada Pavilion 2018: Building on Our Diversity

The Canada Pavilion was designed as an open concept space, with three primary areas for delegates to engage:

Touchscreens for visitors to browse through Canadian HIV research, programs, and policies on display.

A discussion area hosted presentations by Canadian researchers, program managers, and community activists, and allowed space for networking.

A photo backdrop drew visitors and boosted social media engagement.

The Honourable Ginette Petitpas-Taylor, then Minister of Health, visited the Pavilion and took part in an Indigenous welcome by Valerie Nicholson, and a video screening.

Activities at the Canada Pavilion included an interactive resource bank, a variety of live presentations, and the launch of a video, “Positive Living: HIV Stories from Canada”.

Canada Pavilion team consisted of CAGH staff and the first-ever Canada Pavilion Travel Grant recipients, who welcomed visitors to the space.

Canada Pavilion 2020 (virtual)

Resilient Together

Due to the global impact of COVID-19, AIDS 2020 was conducted virtually. The Canada Pavilion was a customized exhibit operating on the conference's platform. 7 Key elements were included to create an engaging and informative display:

1. Welcome Video—Available here
2. Overview (key documents)
3. Live Sessions—Available here
4. Resource Hub—Available here
5. Virtual Photo Booth
6. Quiz
7. Live Chat

Resilient Together

CAGH developed a separate website to overcome limitations created by the conference's virtual platform. AIDSCanada.ca houses a variety of content from the Pavilion, such as recordings of the sessions and the Resource Hub, and continues to be updated and maintained post-conference.

Christine Edet
I appreciate how deeply challenging this discussion is.

Susan Kaali
Excellent "out of box" thoughts Seye-I really like the focus on aka "loving your neighbor as yourself" and "imagination"! Bravo!!

Spot on summary 'Seye!! I appreciate your deep thinking :)

Fernando Sanchez
Inspirational, pieces of ideas that should be cultivated and spread as lighting as the way it is promote, in provocative way, for the critical thinking

Clinton Eze-Okorokpa
I often feel concerned that the younger generation seem to have imbibed the skewed perception of being more important than the other person as to not want to let go of their self-conceted views
